WILDEMAN

It is an old Maasland beer, traditionally brewed with a portion of dark malt and spelled malt. The beer gets its fine, wine-like aroma by adding a three-year-old Lambic (8%) matured in oak barrels, as was customary for the old storage beers. This beer was conceived and brewed by Frank Boon (Brouwerij Boon) on behalf of Bokrijk.

The name of the beer refers to the popular late medieval legend about knight Valentine and wild man Ourson. The choice of name is a nod to the commemoration of 450 years of Pieter Bruegel the Elder in 2019 and the exhibition trail 'The World of Bruegel' in the Open Air Museum Bokrijk (2019-2020).

*Traditionally

ARTISANAL PRODUCTS WITH A STORY

Heide Atelier is an ice cream workshop with a moving story. How this story began on a November day in 2005...

Our daughter suffered a stroke at the age of 15 while jogging. A period of rehabilitation in several centers followed in the following months. Here they do everything to restore as many functions as possible. But ...

The following soon became clear to us. After rehabilitation, there is a great need for follow-up care among young adults with Acquired Brain Injury (NAH), especially those with a 'mild form' of NAH. They do not need intense physical or psychological help, but are often not suitable for a sheltered workplace, for school or the regular employment circuit. This 'floating group' is aware and to a certain extent moderately independent, but often just sits at home, realizing that they are missing opportunities, with all the frustrations that entails.

As an organization, we also want to be a sounding board for parents who suddenly have a 'different child' at home... How do you deal with that, and what perspectives can or cannot be presented. That is why we, as parents, have decided to contribute to this need and have founded Heide Atelier (non-profit youth organization Hoge Heide), in the hope that this will be widely supported in society.
